PUBLISHED DAILY IN SCRANTON, PA., BY THE TRIBUNE PUBLISHING COMPANY. E. P. KINGSBURY, GENERAL MANAGER.

NEW YORK OFFICE: TRIBUNE BUILDING, FRANK B. MAY, MANAGER.

SCRANTON, AUGUST 7, 1894. REPUBLICAN STATE TICKET.

For Governor: DANIEL H. HASTINGS, OF CENTRAL. For Lieutenant Governor: WALTER LYON, OF ALLEGHENY.

For Auditor General: AMOS H. MYLIN, OF LANCASTER. For Secretary of Internal Affairs: JAMES W. LAYTON, OF PHILADELPHIA.

For Congressmen-at-Large: GALUSHA A. GROW, OF SUSQUEHANNA. GEORGE F. HUFF, OF WESTMORELAND.

Election Time, Nov. 6. "WHAT QUEEN LIL WANTS" occupies much space in the papers; but what Queen Lil needs is a strong dose of letting alone.

Labor's New Danger. It is becoming more and more apparent that organized labor in this country can expect no permanent and general betterment of its condition until it goes to the task of self-improvement in a rational and scientific manner.

As to the political or partisan aspect of Mr. Chandler's resolution, we are less concerned. The Post, unconsciously and it seems to us, unduly sensitive on matters pertaining to the "fair fame" of the American congress.

But now labor is told to resort to the polls. The man Debs, who failed to pilot it to victory along the lines of revolution and anarchy, is urging it to lay aside the rifle and the torch and grasp in its hand instead the peaceful ballot.

And President John McBride, of the United Mine workers, in his call for a labor convention to be held in Columbus, O., one week from Thursday, for the purpose of taking political action, gives a clew to what this new movement is intended to be when, in the course of a rambling preamble, he claims that corporate power, when aided and abetted by the executive, judicial and military arm of the government, state and national, can override the rights of wage-workers, despite the efforts of organized labor to prevent it.

The best way for any man to win the respect and confidence of the American people is to deserve it. We do not think that a large percentage of the public officials in congress today measure up to that simple test.

PERHAPS THOSE who claim that silver has been demonetized by Republican legislation will have time to explain why even yet a fifty-cent silver dollar is as good a purchasing agent, inside our own country, as a 100-cent gold dollar or a half-cent dollar bill.

ADDLE BRAINED FINANCIERING. At its present ratio of depletion there seems little reason to doubt that within a few weeks at farthest the gold reserve, which by law is designed to be kept at the even $100,000,000 mark, will have sunk to less than 40 per cent. of this amount.

ent" Lil. This is fine talk to go into the ears of an American president. It is nothing less than asking him to be a party to treason and rebellion.

Soft Coal and Sycophancy. The Washington Post, speaking in this matter, as it has in other matters, in the behalf of those Democratic senators who are arrayed in opposition to the president, strongly condemns Mr. Chandler's proposed investigation of the Nova Scotia coal matter, alleging that it is based upon the "detestable hypothesis that there is something improper in having money to invest and something unprofitable in the effort to make the investment profitable."

For ourselves, we prefer to see an American congress legislating for the benefit of American industries, and still consistently advocate that theory, but the promoters of foreign industries have a perfect right to seek advantage here, and if they succeed without injury to any domestic interest so much the better.

The Post, it will be seen, is ingenious enough to put the syndicate's best foot forward. It seems to forget, however, that the duty of an American congress ends at the borders of American territory in matters of this character. The proposition that it may, either in repayment of political obligations, or out of courtesy to the personal and social friendships of a president or of a coterie of senators, or in return for free gifts of stock vote returns into the hands of a foreign syndicate at the expense of a home industry is utterly obnoxious.

Granting that the organizers of the Dominion Coal company are Americans, it does not follow according to any accepted principle of wise political economy that an American congress should in their behalf strike a blow at American investors whose industrial investments are on American soil, paying wages to American wage earners, freight tolls to American railroads that are manned by American trainmen; and finally, giving the whole benefits of their enterprise and activities to American commerce.

As to the political or partisan aspect of Mr. Chandler's resolution, we are less concerned. The Post, unconsciously and it seems to us, unduly sensitive on matters pertaining to the "fair fame" of the American congress.

But now labor is told to resort to the polls. The man Debs, who failed to pilot it to victory along the lines of revolution and anarchy, is urging it to lay aside the rifle and the torch and grasp in its hand instead the peaceful ballot.

either been woefully mismanaged or woefully neglected, despite the fact that the present secretary of the treasury was almost the president's only choice.

It is generally admitted now that the panic of 1893 was set going by Mr. Carlisle's inadequacy, combined with Mr. Cleveland's delay in convening an extra session of congress to pass silver repeal. Had there not been deep under-the-surface causes of more general significance than these, it would not have been such a serious panic; but for the startling of it; for the bringing of the various clouds of unrest and menacing disaster to a focus productive of the terrible downpour, we have to credit the rainmaker of the treasury department, Mr. Carlisle. Yet it appears that even this lesson was to some extent lost upon him, judging from the jaunty manner in which he permitted the gold reserve to dwindle and seeks to force upon congress a tariff bill black with the promise of yet greater deficits. Such a management of treasury affairs has not been seen before in at least one generation; and if it shall not be repeated during another, few persons will feel truly sorry.

LUZERNE COUNTY is sure of a good Republican congressman next fall no matter who is nominated today; and that's what the masses are most concerned about.

AT THE Pie Counter. In Spain, in the country, peasants, on meeting a stranger, offer him as a salutation a portion of the bread they always carry with them. The Germans are unusually cordial in their greetings, even to perfect strangers, a most common form of greeting being "wei behden sie sich" ("How do you and yourself"). In Germany it is also considered an act of courtesy to kiss the hand of a lady. Among the French and Belgians, especially, the habit of men embracing each other is very common. In India the two intimate friends think nothing of falling into each other's arms and kissing in public. The Malays and Polynesians salute by rubbing noses together. In India the Buddhists salute by lowering the palm of the right hand and bringing it up towards the face, at the same time saying "Nam, nam, chai." The Chinese do the same, but simply say "Salam." This is only done in other cases among members of the same faith. The Chinese have a regular code of salutation, eight in number, which defines the proper amount of respect to be paid different individuals. Two curious greetings which these people have among themselves are those of asking each other "Have you eaten your rice?" and "Is your stomach in good order?" The Japanese show respect in meeting by bending the knee, though in the street they only make a feint at so doing. A curious kind of salutation among the Moors is to ride at full gallop toward one another and when close, certain distance away, discharge a pistol over each other's head. Egyptians greet one another with a remark peculiar to their country, "How goes the perspiration?" or "Do you sweat copiously?" In China an inferior on meeting a superior bows and dismounts and waits until the latter has passed. In Siam the inferior throws himself upon the ground before his superior, the latter sends forward a slave to see whether the former has been eating anything, or carries with him any smell at all offensive. If he does, he is immediately kicked out without ceremony, but if not, the attendant raises him up.—(Windsor Free Press.)

AND IT CAME TO PASS: The fool killer sat on the mossy bank, He did; And watched a youthful summer crank, As we have often made a note, Stand up, and laughing, rock the boat.

The fool killer, smiling said: "Te he, He did; "That fellow is doing my work for me, And he did.

A letter which the Washington Post thinks serves to illustrate the wide range of usefulness which has been recently put by one of the Louisiana representatives from a local elector. The letter is as follows: "It has been some time since I heard from you, and your printed letter (it was written on a typewriter) written last August, stating you would send me some of Senator Hanson's stock of dogs, but they have not come to my hands yet. In our parish we have no more sugar cane than we can eat; so we need a congressman that will send us a few dogs to protect our cane. I had quite a hounding bear, but as they started to eating our calves I had to start again. Also, Mr. London had quit and gone to preaching, but he had to return back and kill a few more bears to protect our country. While the bears were gathering the black-berry crop, we killed a bear any day we wanted one. The last bear we started was a large one and the first that he made killed my five Kentucky dog Buck that Dr. Evans sent me from Kentucky. Buck was a young dog just trained. I am short of dogs. A bear broke the shoulder of one of our old dogs. The bear that killed Buck ran Terry Brown with a fine shot gun on his shoulder. We need rain here very badly. The red dog you gave me was taken sick, and I had to give him away."

vention in Luzerne town, where he expects to view the battle between John Leisinger and ex-Senator Williams. Fred would keep away from a first-class political fight.

The fact that the Republican State league convention at Harrisburg has been called for Sept. 5, the day following the Republican county convention here, will possibly prevent from attending some Scrantonians who would otherwise be on hand to witness the selection of Jack Robinson's successor in the league's presidency. The more active young Republicans of the county will, however, take the evening train on the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western for Northumberland, on Sept. 4, reaching Harrisburg Wednesday morning. Those actively interested in the league's work may leave to forego the pleasure of the county convention on Tuesday, one month hence.

The Luzerne county Republican convention will meet this morning at 10 o'clock in Landmesser's hall to nominate a candidate for congress, one for orphan's court judge and several for minor county offices. At the primaries on Saturday delegates were chosen apparently favorable to John Leisinger, of Upper Lehigh, brother of G. H. Leisinger, president of the Lehigh county, New Jersey, county, for congress; but since then the friends of ex-Senator Morgan B. Williams have been actively at work, and now claim that their nominees have to forego the pleasure of the county convention on Saturday, one month hence.

FOR DELEGATE ELECTIONS. Appointment of Republican Representatives Among the Various Dist. Pursuant to a meeting of the Republican County committee held on July 14th, 1894, the County Convention will be held on Tuesday, September 4th, 1894, at 10 o'clock a. m., in the court house at Scranton, for the purpose of picking in nomination candidates for the following named offices, to be voted for at the next general election to be held November 6th, 1894: Congress, Executive, Judge, County fifth judicial district, sheriff, treasurer, clerk of court, probate judge, district attorney, recorder of deeds, register of wills, and jury commissioner.

Each election district should elect at the said delegate election, two qualified persons to serve as judges of election, one for one year, and have their names certified to, on the credentials of delegates to the County Convention.

The representation of delegates to the County Convention is based upon the vote cast last fall for Fall, candidate for judge of supreme court, he being the highest vote in that election. The several election districts are entitled to representation as follows, viz:
